Republic is proud to add the new casement-ready (no backbend) MN Series frame to its offering. Designed to be used with architectural wood casing, these frames have no backbend allowing the face to sit flush with the wall. This means that the MN Series is ready and able to accept a variety of wood casings.

With Republic's casement-ready MN Series, your project can be designed with wood casing for unique and inviting opening looks, especially fitting in hospitality and multi family applications. And unlike other flush face frames, the casement-ready frame is heavy-duty and fire rated to meet the needs of any project.

In today's construction cycle, the pressure to get frames installed early to avoid project delays is intense. The effects of delays are extensive and complex. The casement-ready frame from Republic alleviates those concerns by providing a solution that can be installed along with the door later in the construction cycle.

So, for your next project rest assured that you have options, because the Republic casement-ready frame series is ready for you.
