

How millennial lifestyles are redefining security in multifamily living

As the largest living generation in the U.S., millennials play a major role in shaping multifamily real estate trends.

A new survey* reveals top areas multifamily developers, owners and property managers should consider for access control and security technology.

Millennials have sights set on multifamily environments

Millennials shop online — making them vulnerable to package theft

Everyone wants to feel safe at home, though today's renters lack this feeling of security

Property managers can help renters feel safer, while providing seamless access

52% prefer higher-tech entry/access methods:

From access control and visitor management to package delivery and concierge services, multifamily property managers and millennial residents benefit from efficient and flexible mobile access solutions.

ALLEGION

Allegion works with property managers and integrators to provide secure, flexible and convenient access solutions that attract millennial renters.

Please visit multifamily.allegion.com to learn more.

*Source: Schlage Lock Co., LLC. Survey of 1,002 adults (aged 23-39), randomized blind survey, November 2019.